Lisbon, November 25, N. S.

ON the 21st Instant came in his Britannick Majesty's Ship the Prince of Orange, having lost her Main-mast and Mizen-mast in a Storm of Wind on the First of November O. S. in the Latitude of 48; and the 23d came in the Superbe, having lost all her Masts in the same Storm; the Cumberland accompanied her to see her safe into Harbour: The latter will soon put to Sea again to follow the Fleet under Sir Chaloner Ogle. The Commanders of these Men of War are of Opinion, that the rest of the Ships received no Damage that might prevent their proceeding on, and judge they have had a fair Wind ever since.
